As announced in the previous edition of the Newsletter (Issue No. 2 - June 2015), the Ministry of Civil Service and Administrative Reforms organised a workshop for Project Coordinators/Champions. Around 180 participants from both the HR and Financial Operations Cadres, actively participated in the event. The Opening Ceremony of the workshop held on 22 July was marked by the Keynote address of the Hon. Alain Wong, Minister of Civil Service and Administrative Reforms.

22 – 23 July 2015 @ Swami Vivekananda International Convention Centre with HR & Finance Coordinators - Our Project Champions, a real support to our HRMIS Project

The HRMIS is a major reform and modernisation programme which goes, in line with my Ministry’s vision: “A professional public service committed to excellence”

We can say that today, in this push button era, change is the only constant that can ensure the success of an organisation. New initiatives, including technology improvements, come together to drive ongoing changes. In fact, reforms are part of an ongoing process across the world in view of the daunting challenges in the global environment. We cannot be complacent and rest on our laurels. We have also to keep pace with developments. You all know that change needs to happen, but you don’t really know how to go about delivering it. Where do you start? Whom do you involve? How do you see it through to the end? The answer to all these apparently difficult and terrifying questions is simple: Technology.

A change of the Civil Service is therefore our main objective and this will not be possible unless we invest in actions like building the capacity of our people and streamlining of our work processes and procedures through optimisation of Information and Communication Technologies. For this change to be possible, the contribution of each and everyone is essential.

Change cannot be brought about by one person, but through a coalition of all stakeholders involved. The full support of key departments and institutions is vital. This “change coalition” needs to work as a team and continue to build urgency and momentum around the need for change.

........ through the implementation of the HRMIS, the principles of Accountability and Transparency, which are essential elements for a smarter public service in a modern world, will be strengthened. We will no doubt witness drastic changes in the way business is conducted in the Civil Service - A real Paradigm Shift. Needless to say that without change, the risk for our country to lose its competitive edge is high and I am sure none of you would like his country to be a loser.

“To improve is to change: to be perfect is to change often”. Therefore, let us all work as a team to attain excellence in the public service. Let me also add that it is good to bring changes. But what to change? My expectation is that everyone in the civil service adopts the right attitude for change. We should go for the best.

To achieve excellence, a sportsman, for example, makes a lot of sacrifice. Likewise, we should make sacrifices for a better world. I make a humble plea to all civil servants to adopt this right attitude for change.
On that occasion, Mr. P. Jhugroo, Senior Chief Executive, laid emphasis on the important role played by officers of the HR and Financial Operations Cadres to drive the HRMIS Project ahead. In his message to participants, he highlighted the following:

EXTRACT FROM MESSAGE MR. P. JHUGROO, SENIOR CHIEF EXECUTIVE, MINISTRY OF CIVIL SERVICE & ADMINISTRATIVE REFORMS

The success of any major reform initiative is highly dependent on the involvement of people. I firmly believe in Change and you are the ones who will drive the change, and make things happen.

Some attributes and qualities displayed by Change Agents:

Having a clear vision
Communicating the vision to officers clearly, tapping into their strengths and helping them see the various ways to work towards a common purpose.

Patient yet persistent - “Be an Encourager in any situation and under all circumstances”
Change does not happen overnight. Encourage your people to never give up and help them get closer to the goal.

Asking tough questions
Upon change, people usually have unending questions. Asking questions shows that your concern about the project. Keep asking questions.

Knowledgeable and leading by example
Leaders have “character and credibility” (Stephen Covey). To create change, do not only say it, but demonstrate it.

Strong relationships built on trust
Share strong relationships with your people and buy-in trust as people hesitate to participate when they do not trust the person pushing the change.
Take your people along the path of change and make the journey a most enriching and enjoyable one.
Relying on your relentless effort to reach the ultimate goal “achieving excellence in service delivery through the successful implementation of the HRMIS project”.

“The Secret of Change is to focus all of your energy, not on fighting the old, but on building the new” (Socrates)
